- Chopard

Chopard makes superlative chronometers (with amazing dials and finishing). How about a "ultimate stealth chronometer" - combining an 8 day movement with a tourbillon (the Poincon de Geneve L.U.C 02.05-L instead of the Fleurier L.U.C 02.13-L1 because why not) - in a 39.5 mm (or even smaller case) like the reference 171914-5001 (not like the reference 161929-5006 which is in a 43mm case - having said that, this reference is rated to 50m water depth unlike the smaller one which is rated for only 30m, I would like similar principles being adopted while case construction). The case shape will ideally be like the L.U.C QUATTRO SPIRIT 25 (reference 161977-5001) with a Grand Feu dial (and the power reserve indicator on the back side of the movement). Additionally, the gap where the tourbillon bridge is should also be covered (evoking the aesthetics of a Patek 3939H) - no one should know that the watch has a tourbillon (even though the tourbillon is at the front side of the watch, unlike say Patek which puts it at the back). To further cement the beauty of the watch, the movement should be constructed with maillechort(german silver, which acquires a beautiful patina over time) and have flourishes of other colours (like red), kind of like the L.U.C LOUIS-ULYSSE - THE TRIBUTE (reference 161923-1001). Also, how about combining the L.U.C First Strike (sonnerie, not minute repeater) with the Jump Hour quattro, like Patek's 175th anniversary watch?
- Chronometrie Ferdinand Berthoud - the most beautiful timepieces with constant force escapements, combined with either a tourbillon or a remontoir.
- Reverso with an art dial, like the nude on Chrono24, or the Hokusai Wave art
- Patek Philippe 5101P/R - 10 day Tourbillon, exquisite finishing
- Interesting Alloys - 18ct W 182, Purple Gold, Audenwire, Palaural, Ir/Ru + Pt, Tantalum,
- Ulysse Nardin Le Locle Skeleton "Inverted Movement" 146 28 Ulysse Nardin Watch
- Theoretical Musings:
 1. Wandering hours watches are all the rage (Urwerk, Arnold and Son, Audemars Piguet, Vacheron Constantin etc.) - why not combine it with wandering months with a date, and a perpetual calendar (kind of an exploded inline perpetual calendar)....
 2. A musical watch - minute repeater, grande et petite sonnerie, alarm with westminster carillon, timer, date repeater, chronograph with chime. (a grandmaster chime lol)
